

- The final n-blend category of phonetic elements includes: nd, nk, and nt.

This lesson is divided into two sections. Section 1 is the core lesson, which can be used with most students in a whole-class or small-group setting. The core lesson is designed to introduce, model, and practice the phonetic element taught. Section 2 consists of optional activities designed to reinforce the element taught in the core lesson. These optional activities work well for small-group and individual instruction.

SECTION 1
Student Objectives

- Introduce final n-blends
- Blend final n-blend words
- Blend onset and rime
- Sort words
- Practice decoding
- Introduce new high-frequency words: came, think, why
- Read the decodable book

Introduce Final N-Blends
Materials: Final n-blend picture cards

- Show students the final n-blend picture card for paint. Ask them to name the picture and tell you the sound they hear at the end of the word. Point to the letters nt on the card and tell students that the letters n and t together stand for the blended /nt/ sound they hear at the end of the word paint.
- Explain that paint ends with nt, which is one of the blended sounds in a group of sounds called final n-blends. Tell students that in a blend, two or three consonants are grouped together in a word, each letter keeping its own sound. The other final n-blends are: nd and nk. Cite examples of words that use these blends (gland, blend, stink, junk, giant, punt).
- Say the words paint and pail aloud. Ask students which word contains the final n-blend. Make sure students can differentiate between the two ending sounds.
- Show students the final n-blend picture cards one by one. Have them name each picture, point to the blend, and say the blended sound.
- Ask students to name other words that end with each of the blends, taking one final n-blend at a time. Write each final n-blend on the board. As students name a word, ask them to tell the blend it goes under. Then write each word under the appropriate blend.

Blend Final N-Blend Words
Materials: Workmats, letter cards

NOTE: If students have mastered individual sound/symbol relationships, you may want to skip this section and go directly to Blend Onset and Rime.

- Write the word send on the board. Point out the final n-blend and ask students to blend the n and d together to make the blended sound. Next, run your finger under the letters as you blend the four sounds in send: s/e/n/d. Point out that the four letters are blended together to form the four sounds in the word. Then have students blend the word aloud with you as you run your finger under the letters.
- Repeat the blending activity with the words sand, bunk, sunk, went, and bunt. Take one word at a time. When students have blended the words, ask volunteers to come up and circle the final n-blends in the words. Have a volunteer point to each final n-blend as the rest of the group says the sound.
- If students need more work with blending words, give them the letter/blend workmat and letter cards to blend the words above. Have students line up the card for each sound in each word under the boxes on their workmat. Model how to push up each sound of the final n-blend into the boxes on the workmat and blend the letters to indicate the sound the blend makes. Have students push up and sound out the remaining letters of each word in order on their workmat.

Blend Onset and Rime
Materials: Letter cards, word-family cards

- Tell students they are going to practice reading words with a final n-blend. Model using the letter cards and word-family cards.
 - ❶ Place the and word-family card in a pocket chart or along the ledge of a chalkboard. Remind students that this is the and word family. Ask students to identify the final n-blend in the word family. Place the st letter card in front of and. Have students listen while you model sounding out the word by blending the sounds in the onset with the sounds in the rime: st/and. Have students repeat.
 - ❷ Replace the st card with the b card. Repeat the process with the new word.
 - ❸ Take out the cards and replace the and card with the end card. Have students name the word family and final n-blend. Place the l letter card in front of end. Have students listen while you model sounding out the word by blending the sound in the onset with the sounds in the rime: l/end. Have students repeat.
 - ❹ Replace the l card with the sp card. Repeat the process with the new word.

- 5 Take out the cards and replace the end card with the ink card. Have students name the word family and final n-blend. Place the p letter card in front of ink. Have students listen while you model sounding out the word by blending the sound in the onset with the sounds in the rime: p/ink. Have students repeat.
- 6 Replace the p card with the w card. Repeat the process with the new word.
- 7 Take out the cards and replace the ink card with the ank card. Have students name the word family and final n-blend. Place the b letter card in front of ank. Have students listen while you model sounding out the word by blending the sound in the onset with the sounds in the rime: b/ank. Have students repeat.
- 8 Replace the b card with the s card. Repeat the process with the new word.
- 9 Take out the cards and replace the ank card with the ent card. Have students name the word family and final n-blend. Place the t letter card in front of ent. Have students listen while you model sounding out the word by blending the sound in the onset with the sounds in the rime: t/ent. Have students repeat.
- 10 Replace the t card with the d card. Repeat the process with the new word.

Sort Words

Materials: Final n-blend cards, word cards

- Place one of each final n-blend card on the top row of a pocket chart or along the ledge of a chalkboard. Ask volunteers to come up one at a time, select a word card, say the word, and place it under the correct blend. Continue until all the word cards are placed correctly. Once all the words have been sorted, have students read aloud the words under each blend.

Practice Decoding

Materials: Decodable book Grand Slam Tennis, practice sheet

- For students who seem to have a grasp of decoding final n-blend words and previously taught decodable and high-frequency words, provide extra practice with the text by allowing them to independently read:
 - the practice sheet
 - the decodable book Grand Slam Tennis
- Some students may benefit from having the decodable book introduced and pre-taught before they read the book. Strategies might include introducing and practicing high-frequency words used in the book, teaching special word structures, and doing a book walk.

Introduce New High-Frequency Words: came, think, why

- Tell students they are going to learn three new words that they need to be able to recognize and read quickly. Write the words came, think, and why on the board, and read them as you point to each word. Then have students read each word with you.
- Have students write the word came in the air with their finger as you spell it out loud with them, pointing to each letter on the board as you say the letter name. Repeat the process with the other words.
- Use the high-frequency words in a sentence. Have students make up their own sentences using each of the high-frequency words. You might want to challenge them to make up a sentence that uses more than one of the words.

Read the Decodable Book

Materials: Decodable book Grand Slam Tennis

NOTE: See the “Elements Used in This Book” section, found at the start of the decodable book, for a list of words and skills covered in the book. Pre-teach these elements as necessary.

- Show students the cover of the book. Have them read the title with you as you run your finger under each word. Ask students what they see in the picture and what they think the story might be about. Ask a student to point to the final n-blend in the word Grand.
- Give students a copy of the book. Have them preview the pictures and predict the story. When they get to page 8, ask who they think will win the game.
- Have students read the book. You may want them to whisper read so you can monitor their progress. When they have finished reading, take time to discuss the book and check for understanding. Ask students what the problem in the story was and how they chose to solve it.

SECTION 2 Optional Lesson Activities (for students who need additional practice)

Student Objectives

- Blend final n-blend words
- Blend onset and rime
- Manipulate onset and rime
- Spell and write final n-blend words
- Complete learning center activities

Blend Final N-Blend Words
Materials: Workmats, letter cards

- Give students the letter/blend workmat and the letter cards. Say the word mint and have students listen for the sounds in the word. Tell students to select the letter cards they need to spell mint. Provide help as needed. Have students line up the cards for each sound under the boxes on their workmat. Ask them to blend each sound as they push the letters into the boxes. Then have them say the word mint aloud.
- Repeat with the words land, blink, and bent.

Blend Onset and Rime
Materials: Workmats, letter cards, word-family cards

- Give students the onset/rime workmat, the letter cards, and the word-family cards. Say the word sand. Ask students what rime they hear at the end. Have them place the and word-family card in the box on the right of their workmat. Ask them what final n-blend they hear in this word family. Have students identify the onset they need to put at the beginning of and to make the word sand. Have them place the s card in the box on the left. Write the word on the board. Have students check their spelling of the word on their workmat with the word on the board. Then have them blend the sound in the onset with the sounds in the rime.
- Say the words bank, band, tent, wink, lend, pink, dent, stand, spend, and sank one at a time and have students use the letter and word-family cards to spell the words on their workmat. Have them blend the onset and rime as they make each word. Write each word on the board as students finish making the word on their workmat. Have students check their spelling of each word on their workmat with the word on the board.
- Once all of the words have been made, have students read the words on the board. You can extend the activity by having students make their own words on their workmat.

Manipulate Onset and Rime

Materials: Workmats, letter cards, word-family cards

- Use the onset/rime workmat, the letter cards, and the word-family cards to make new words. Start with the ent word family card in the final position on the workmat and have students substitute the letter cards in the initial position to make new words.
- Repeat the previous activity with the int, ank, ond, and and word-family cards. Have students substitute the letter cards to make words they know.

Spell and Write Final N-Blend Words

- Dictate several final n-blend words and have students write or spell them (pink, hand, cent, bunk, punt, spend).
- Dictate simple sentences for students to write.
 - He can punt the ball.*
 - I will hold your hand.*
 - She has a pink bed.*
 - I go to my bunk.*
 - I will not spend one cent.*

Learning Center Activities

Materials: Final n-blend picture cards, final n-blend cards, letter cards, word-family cards, word cards, Bingo cards, place markers

- Tell students to sort the final n-blend picture cards by the final n-blend in each word. Have students place each picture card under the correct final n-blend card. Students can work with a partner to sort the words.
- Laminate a set of letter cards and a set of word-family cards, and place them face down into two piles in the center of the table. Have students take turns drawing one letter card (onset) and one word-family card (rime), and blending the sounds of the onset and rime together. Return the cards to the bottom of the pile after each turn.
- Give each student a blank Bingo card. Have them write final n-blend words from the word cards on their Bingo card. Place the word cards upside down. Have students take turns drawing a word and saying it aloud. Have them put a place marker on their card if they find a word that matches the one read. Continue playing until a student has marked three words in a row on his/her card.
